The Future

Apart from the economic downturn in 2011, since release Chateau Lynch-Bages 2006 has remained an attractive investment, with its price continuing to rise consistently, especially as other wines, particularly a number of First Growths, lost up to 50% of their value. Chateau Lynch-Bages has an excellent investment record, even in classic, rather than exceptional vintages – similarly rated earlier vintages 1986 (94 Parker points) & 1996 (93 points) – have average annual percentage increases since release of 19% and 17% respectively. The wine from the 2006 vintage, having already appreciated significantly, will continue to be a top investment grade prospect for years to come.
